

How to Craft a Problem Solution Essay: A Complete Guide

Writing can be a very interesting but tedious affair. This is mainly because one has to remember so many things at times that it can get confusing and draining. However, it is an essential part of academics and must be followed properly to ensure great outcomes.

One of the things that are often handed to students is to write an essay. This can be very problematic as there are so many different kinds. But that should not deter you as you are about to learn some great tips. Sometimes it can be challenging to write a paper and, in such cases, you can always hire an essay writing service to assist you in your task. It would save you from many hassles and you can get a perfect paper written by a professional essay writer.

A problem-solution essay can be very tricky to write about. You know a problem and you want to solve it. Sounds easy? But you have to convince the audience on the matter as well as otherwise, no one would read your work.

This can be really problematic as even though you might know the solution, there has to be proper backing of facts and details that makes everything much more convincing.

An essay writer must be able to identify the solutions through research after identifying the problem. Here is how you craft a problem/solution essay

- Firstly, you must see the essay prompt and try to find out the problem that must be solved. If you are given an open choice, then choose a current issue that you would need to solve. The aim is to set the boundary here and define the scope of the essay which is essential. Do not go too broad and nor too shallow.
- Secondly, you have to show the people why they should care. Is the problem so important that people must care about it or is it unimportant? If it is unimportant, no one would read it. You have to use enough evidence to highlight why the issue needs attention and eventually a solution.
- You should devise the solution that you think is the best under the circumstances. Be careful as you have to prove it to the audience that the solution is the best one. Do some research and do not write the solution till you are absolutely confident that it is the one you need to pursue. These details can be added to the outline of the essay. The solution has to be the most compelling part followed by the problem.
- Finally, you have to depict a final picture of the entire matter. This is where you can show some future details that would be possible if the solution you have proposed is implemented. This becomes rhetoric for your solution and can generate the right level of interest in the audience. If I write my essay, I would always show these details as it can give the audience a glimpse into the future. You can find help in writing such details from an expert writer.

The above details are some of the essential things that you need to add to the essay. However, the overall way you construct an essay almost remains the same. Here are the things that you need to know

- Start with a strong hook that is related to the problem itself. Then start the introduction so that you can tell the audience about the details of the problem and then ensure what the solution might be the best one.
- End the introduction with the thesis. The thesis must include all the relevant details that have to be added to the final draft. Every detail must be connected to the thesis statement. The thesis can be in multiple parts where each paragraph must be connected to the essay paragraphs.
- Each of the paragraphs must have topic sentences that inform a part of the thesis. Also, you need to be sure that each paragraph discusses just one topic. One of the things is that some paragraphs must include details of the problem and others of the solution. The final few paragraphs must discuss how the future might be changed if the solution is deployed and then the conclusion be added.
- A conclusion must be well-thought-out. This is because it leaves a lasting impression. Also, it is imperative that there is a call to action so that the audience knows how to react.

- Developing an outline is really helpful. This is because all the details within the essay have to be just right. You cannot mix the details and there has to be the right cohesion. The outline can help out as you can have a blueprint that assists you to write the final essay.
- Use the outline to form the first draft. The draft has to be consistent with the outline with relevant citations added to it. This would make the final essay even easier to develop. If you need guidance on developing an essay, EssayWriter can help you out. They have experts that can provide the right guidance to you.
- Once everything looks great, you can just get ready to prepare the final draft. Keep all the material that you have developed over the course of the assignment with you. It would help you to follow the right instructions and not miss out on any issues that might be present.
- Throughout the overall drafting process, the idea is to proofread the assignment from time to time. This is really imperative as the more accurate the grammar and overall essay is, the better the impact that it would have on the audience. This would ensure that any inconsistencies are removed and the final essay is clean as a whistle.
